PHILIPPINE SCHOOLS.

The Philippine Exhibit at St. Louis has no more interesting department than that illustrative of the progress in educational affairs since American occupation. From reports made by A. R. Hager, chief of the educational department of the Exposition Board, the following interesting data have been taken:

"There are a number of schools carried on in connection with the Philippine exhibit, which have been seen by the thousands of visitors who daily visit the Philippine reservation. A model school is held in a building constructed by Filipino workmen. It is built of bamboo, thatched with nipa, and lined with a species of woven bamboo. The building looks frail indeed, but it is the counterpart of thousands in the Philippines that have withstood both earthquakes and typhoons.

"Instruction is given in English to the native children by a Filipino lady teacher from the Manila Normal School. There is also a Visayan school intended to show just what the rural schools of the Philippines are like and the kind of work that is being done there all the time. The pupils are those who are just beginning their struggle with English and the three Rs, as well as others who are more advanced, having had instruction before coming to the United States.

"There is another polyglot school unlike anything else anywhere. It is a school for Igorotes, Moros, Tingguines and Negritos. They all meet together in the same room and are as much of a curiosity to each other as they are to the visitors of the exposition, having been gathered from widely separated regions of the archipelago. They, too, are mastering the elements of English and number work. They are dressed, or almost undressed, according to native customs and while looking askance at each other, on the whole mingle well together and are making progress.

"Those who have been most closely identified with the educational efforts of the insular government do not hesitate to say that the English learned by the Filipino during the past three years is greater in amount than the Spanish they acquired during the four hundred years of Spanish rule.

"In the educational building, which is a replica of the Manila cathedral, there are exhibits from every school division of the islands, showing not only intellectual work performed by the pupils, but also their skill in textile work, mat weaving, drawing and penmanship."

The latest reports from Manila show that the original zeal for an English education has not waned, but on the contrary continues to increase in force. The attendance at the close of the school year ended in March, 1904, was 277,000, an increase of over 40 per cent. over the previous year. There is constant demand all over the islands for more American teachers, particularly for those who have had special training along industrial lines.

COLORED PEOPLE IN EARNEST.

The enthusiastic celebration here of Emancipation Day by the race that was given its liberty and shortly afterward admitted to citizenship in this grand country by the same party that gave it its freedom, was a fitting testimonial of the deep appreciation of the race for what had been done for them. The excellent speeches made on that occasion, abounding with intelligent thought, encouraging information, and convincing logic, were a sample of the striking advancement that has been made in less than half a century by a once enslaved people. The colored orators on this occasion showed themselves thoroughly conversant with the life of their people. They displayed knowledge of what great strides had been made by the colored people. They exhibited intelligent and learned familiarity with the record of the American negro. They manifested an interest in his elevation and education commendable and patriotic. The appreciation of their remarks, shown by the rapid attention given and the enthusiasm manifest among the auditors, is indicative of the earnest interest the race has in the welfare and advancement of its members, individually and collectively.

Awake not only to the educational and industrial interests of their people but also to their welfare as humble citizens, the colored people of Clarksburg and all who participated in the exercises here, are aroused over the designs of unscrupulous and prejudiced and avenging people, organized into a political party, to deprive them of their rights guaranteed them by the Constitution of the United States from the beginning of the nation, but of which they were deprived until the act of Abraham Lincoln brought them within the scope of the Constitution, or rather brought about a true application of the Constitution as to their race. They appreciate as never before the disposition of that political party to deprive them of their right of suffrage and following that to make them beasts of burden, as indicated by both Henry G. Davis and Wood Dailey in recent denunciatory and threatening speeches at Charleston, this state, as well as the great sentiment in the Democratic state convention at Parkersburg later to adopt a "lily white platform," and declare the Democratic party "a purely white man's party." They see the danger ahead and it is but mere that their efforts toward the success of the party that believes in their liberty and citizenship should be doubled, even trebled, and that their loyalty to the Republican party should be without a single element of weakness.

It is to their credit that they have determined to persevere, attain higher and greater things, and so earnestly take strenuous steps to protect themselves from the danger that would not only destroy their success and progress but return them to something worse and more wretched than the servitude the race experienced so many years.

THE DAWSON CORPORATION LAW.

The Dawson corporation law is a monument to the wisdom and sagacity of the man whose name it bears, the Republican candidate for governor. It levies a license tax on charters and has been productive of an immense amount of revenue for the state without injuring any interest in the slightest.

This law was bitterly fought by the Democrats and it was only passed after they had exhausted their obstructive and filibustering tactics.

It is not surprising that it encountered Democratic hostility for it was a Republican measure along new lines and the Democracy can never acquiesce in anything Republican or new no matter how clearly and positively the excellence of the measure may appear.

They fought the Dawson corporation law to a finish but time has proven all their arguments against it fallacious and grotesque.

The law has worked just as the Republicans said it would and is today one of the best pieces of legislation ever put on our statute books.

The receipts produced by the law have grown rapidly and the aggregate the last seven years reached the enormous total of $1,641,361.26.

Here we have an average of $252,920.53 every year, money which went into the coffers of the state and helped to keep the government in the splendid condition we found it today.

In the seven Democratic years preceding the period referred to only $414,050.67 was collected on charters, an average of only $59,150.09.

Thus we see that the Republicans got in annually from this source under the Dawson law over $175,000 more than the Democrats and an aggregate in the seven years of over one million and a quarter of dollars more than the Democrats.

This is a record of which the Republican party may well be proud, and one of the things on which it appeals to all citizens for support.

DEMOCRATS LYING.

The Democratic papers are doing a lot of tall lying about the new tax laws in the main hope of deceiving the people and bolstering up a losing cause. They are at their same old game of misrepresentation, but it won't work any better this time than it did four and eight years ago.

They are saying now that the Republican papers have not printed the new laws nor explained them to their readers when the exact reverse is true. The new statutes have gone all over the state and their intent and purpose explained in plain English in countless interviews and editorials. The party has no apologies to make for it knows it is eternally right on this question of tax revision.

The Democrats say that the burden of taxation is placed on the farmer, which is a lie out of the whole cloth. The new laws equalize taxation as never before and have so arranged the system that every interest, great and small will bear its just share.

The Democrats claim that taxes will be raised which is the worst falsehood in the list. The legislation of the extra session provides for the reduction of taxes and by 1909 the tax rate will actually be cut in half, from $1.70 to 85 cents.

Besides this the state laws will save the state thousands of dollars by provisions for more economical and business-like administration of affairs.

Don't believe the Democratic campaign.

paign guff about the extra session for it is only intended to deceive the voter and catch his vote.

Saturday, September 26, 1903, less than one year ago, John J. Cornwell made a speech at Charles Town, this state, against the report and recommendations of the Tax Commission, and on the same day the people of Jefferson county, of which Charles Town is the county seat, in public meeting passed resolutions endorsing tax reform, notwithstanding the bitter speech by Cornwell from a neighboring county against it. This is a matter of public record and it is noticeable now that this same Cornwell does not allude to that event in his speeches through this section in his effort to pose as a tax reformer by opposing and denouncing what steps have been taken in that direction. Repudiated by his own people at a time, when the heat of the campaign was not on, he now attempts in the passion and excitement of a campaign to cover his tracks and act the sly old fox, but memory does not fit away in less than a twelve-month.

The Democrats are playing a game of bluff and bluster in this state, as usual. They are relying on main strength and awkwardness and their vaunted hopes are founded on the sands. Although election day is only a few weeks off they have no organization to speak of and there is none in sight. Johnny McGraw is the whole campaign so far and he has been beaten so often that the Republicans know it is easy to turn the trick this time.

Tom Taggart tells the New York reporters that the West Virginia Democrats are hopeful and may possibly carry the state. Tom seems to be weakening somewhat. A few weeks ago he carried the state by a big majority—in his mind. Evidently the light is breaking over the Indiana prophet and if he keeps up his present gait he will throw up the sponge before election day.

West Virginia's progress under Republican rule has been the wonder of the nation. "Stand pat" for the continuance of the policies which have made West Virginia great.

Putting in Cement Trap.

The street committee and street superintendent are engaged in putting in a cement trap in front of the Swager hotel. A great deal of trouble has been experienced there with the sewerage system and this action is taken to remedy the matter. There are two traps of the sort on West Main street, which have proven a success, and it is believed the trap now being put in will be a great improvement.
